

Half the world still cooks over open flames, often indoors, exposing families to smoke hazards. "Power to the People" host Johan Norberg reveals how that is all changing and increasing energy demands - including this kitchen in Morocco, food is now prepared on a burner fueled by cooking gas. There are also refrigerators – major changes vastly increasing the standard of living.